FIELD GUIDE

What another bureau result can tell you

When one bureau deletes an account and another continues reporting it, compare the records carefully. The difference can help you identify a question worth investigating, but does not prove that every bureau must delete the account.

Use this guide when

- You have the actual correction or deletion result.
- You can match the account across the reports.
- The remaining report has a specific error or incomplete information you can explain.
- You can provide the relevant records and previous correspondence.

Do not claim another bureau found the account unverifiable unless its result actually says that. An account can be deleted for different reasons.

This is often called a follow-suit dispute. The letters here focus on the factual issue and an independent reinvestigation.

COMPARISON WORKSHEET

Compare the same account

| Field                                | Bureau A | Bureau B |
|--------------------------------------|----------|----------|
| Report date                          |          |          |
| Creditor and account reference       |          |          |
| Reported balance                     |          |          |
| Account status                       |          |          |
| Specific payment month or date field |          |          |
| Date of prior dispute                |          |          |
| Result and stated reason             |          |          |

Different update dates or reporting schedules may explain a difference. Match the field names and the actual account before drawing a conclusion.

BEFORE YOU SEND

Prepare and send your packet

- Replace every bracketed field. Remove statements that do not match your experience.
- Use the company's current official dispute address or online process.
- Identify the disputed account and explain the exact error, the supporting facts, and the correction requested.
- Include copies of relevant documents. Keep your originals. Supply identifying information according to the recipient's requirements.
- Save the completed letter and every attachment. For mailed disputes, certified mail with a return receipt can document delivery.
- Record receipt and response dates. Review the result before deciding on a follow-up.

These templates are educational tools for factual, good-faith disputes. They are not legal advice and do not promise deletion, a score increase, funding, or housing approval.

FIELD GUIDE

Follow up on facts and timing

If the account is corrected or deleted

Save the response and updated report. Keep the original evidence and check future reports if you believe the problem has returned.

If the account is verified

Compare the result with the exact issue. Request the procedure if useful, or provide relevant new evidence. An original contract is not automatically required to be sent to you for every reinvestigation.

If you still need help

Check the current CFPB reporting-complaint requirements before submitting a complaint. Present your dispute, receipt date, response, and the specific error that remains. Consider a consumer attorney for an unresolved legal issue.

Use actual receipt dates. Reporting-company reinvestigations generally take 30 days, with 45 days in some circumstances. A procedure description has a separate 15-day response period.
